YANDOIT, FRANKLINFORD, CLYDESDALE, COMMUNITY PLANNING GROUP NEWS.

A meeting was called last month to display the proposed plan for the area.

Not many people turned up, but it was on a Froidee noight and cold 'nuff to be at home in front of the foir.

If anyone wants a copy of the plan or to discuss or propose anything for the community future contact one of the community planning group members.

At this stage, the following proposals seem to be getting off the ground:

Film nights:

The film group now have their very own 16ml projector, as well as an 8ml projector. The group has put in for a grant to purchase a screen, but that is in the waiting list.

The last film night saw a profitable return, which meant that the hall got a bit out of it as well as a little in the kitty for the future.

Apparently one has to be an incorporated association or an individual who is a member of an incorporated association before the film lending people will allow films to be used in public.

The Yandoit Clydesdale Franklinsford film group is just a loose collection of individual members (this is in no way meant as an insult) at the moment and no one will lend them films. The members are considering their options, and we, the viewing public, await their announcement of future actions with baited breath.

Community Notice Board

The plans for a community notice board and community sign have been a bit confusing.

To assist with spreading the news of events and other information, it seemed that there was a need for a notice board so that people could pin up information as they saw fit. The Hepburn Shire announced that they would provide a notice board designed and manufactured by a shire artist to the community, or if the community wanted to design their own notice board they could do so within a budget of $2,500.

The local community has plenty of artists so the decision is still to be made. If you have any ideas let the community planning group know.

Then there is the road sign that is visible from the road and to drivers going past. This needs a bit more work. The siting is a problem too. Maybe two signs so that the residents/visitors coming from the midland highway see the information and also those that come through Yandoit.

International Festival

There is no news to hand on proposed dates or venues but the Chronicle has been advised that planning is in full swing.

www.YCF.org.au

Don't hold your breath.

The yandoit.com.au site is apparently available, but apparently dot org is more appropriate. What the name would be is still in the community planning group melting pot.

CEMETERY NEWS.

Did you know that the cemetery is in fact the Franklinford Yandoit Cemetery? So if anyone wants to find a lost relative's remains who is buried at Yandoit Cemetery or Franklinford Cemetery then they are buried at the same place.

I don't know where one (deceased of course) would be buried at Clydesdale, and I'm not sure whether the Sandon Cemetery allows deceased of other faiths in the grounds.

The Cemetery Trust would also like to let everyone know that no glass should be brought into the Franklinford Yandoit Cemetery. Recently a person caretaking in the grounds received a cut from hidden broken glass.

Yandoit Park and Recreational Reserve News.

The water tank has been delivered and will be sited and connected shortly.

No need to worry, however, if you want to use the public facilities. The syphon from the Reservoir has been restored.

At first flush everything seems to be working.

Did notice however that there is no sign on the ladies' section. Is this another bureaucratic trick to confuse the masses? There is no actual difference inside the two sections: both have a sit-down toilet. Maybe all signs should be abolished and an occupied unoccupied light or sign should be installed. This will save individuals from the trauma of not knowing whether they are in the right section or not, and shouting "someone's here" everytime they hear the sound of a person approaching.

The Chronicle* needs your help.

Once the pages are filled, and printed, the job then is to get The Chronicle delivered. While the majority of the community have letter boxes to tempt the postman who might mistake them for the destination of their mail, a number of people do not have their mail undelivered to their address, they rely on a post office box at Daylesford, Guildford or somewhere else. This means that a number of people do not get The Chronicle. Which is of course a tragedy for them. If you want to receive an email version of The Chronicle . Send me an email at contact@cvmediation.com.au

AND FINALLY...Did you guess what the top ad was about?

This appeared in the Age in October and until I got to the end I thought it must have been for a school or some other institution. Little did I suspect it was our favourite spy organisation:

I would have thought Asio's job was to find other people. If the applicants have trouble finding themselves they would seem to be a little too stupid even for our national agency.

And what will they find when they find themselves?

Could be a TV series in this.

The Yandoit Franklinford Clydesdale Chronicle was devised by Bill O'Donnell of RMB 2445 Yandoit 3461. Who the editorial team will be in the future? Your guess is as good as mine. The Clydesdale News source is George Evan's work and Morrie Klavin's the Franklinford reporter.

This edition is rushed a little to advise of the bbq. Any comments made are written with the best of humourous intentions and no offence is intended to any person, thing, animal or group living or dead.
